

Julian van Velzen is head of the Capgemini Quantum lab: a global network of quantum experts, partners and facilities, focused on 3 key areas: Sensing, Communication and Computing. Julian is excited about quantum technology, as it combines his background in computational physics, sustainable development and digital transformation. Additionally, Julian is part of Capgemini's CTO community, and he's the Dutch representative of the European quantum Consortium (QuIC).