

Stefano Vanni is a tenured researcher at CNRS in France and Swiss National Science Foundation Associate Professor in the Department of Biology at the University of Fribourg, Switzerland. His main research focus is understanding, at a molecular level, how the physicochemical properties of membranes and lipids affect intracellular trafficking and lipid metabolism.