

Maxime Trebitsch is a postdoctoral fellow at the Max-Planck-Institute for Astronomie and at the Centre for Astronomy in Heidelberg, formerly at the Institut d'Astrophysique de Paris. He is specialized in the study of the Epoch of Reionization, and runs large scale radiation-hydrodynamics cosmological simulations to understand the formation and evolution of the first galaxies.